

BEER FLIGHTS

In 2019, a new law was made to allow “beer flights” in restaurants, bars, and other retail licensed businesses. So what is a “beer flight?” According to Flitebrite.com:

... A flight is an assortment of craft beers, often four; served together in small beer flight glasses. There are 16 ounces in your full pint glass, so the beer flight is a fun way for customers to try different brews in smaller, 5-7oz.

An individual may only have one flight of beer at a time for a total of 16 ounces.

Examples:

- 4 ounces of beer in 4 glasses = 16 ounces
- 8 ounces of beer in 2 glasses = 16 ounces
- 2 ounces of beer in 8 glasses = 16 ounces

IMPORTANT THINGS TO REMEMBER:

- Heavy beer may not be sold in flights in any establishment.
- Patrons must finish their first flight of beer before getting another flight.
- Patrons cannot have a flight of beer & another beer portion in front of them at the same time.
- Patrons may have one beer flight “portion” and also may have a wine, heavy beer, or cocktail portion at the same time, depending on the license type where the patron is drinking.
- AND always be “serving wise” - just because you can do something does not necessarily mean that you should; It is ILLEGAL to get someone intoxicated.
